

When Sophie gets angry - really, really angry

Sophie

was busy playing when...

MY TURN

...her sister grabbed Gorilla.

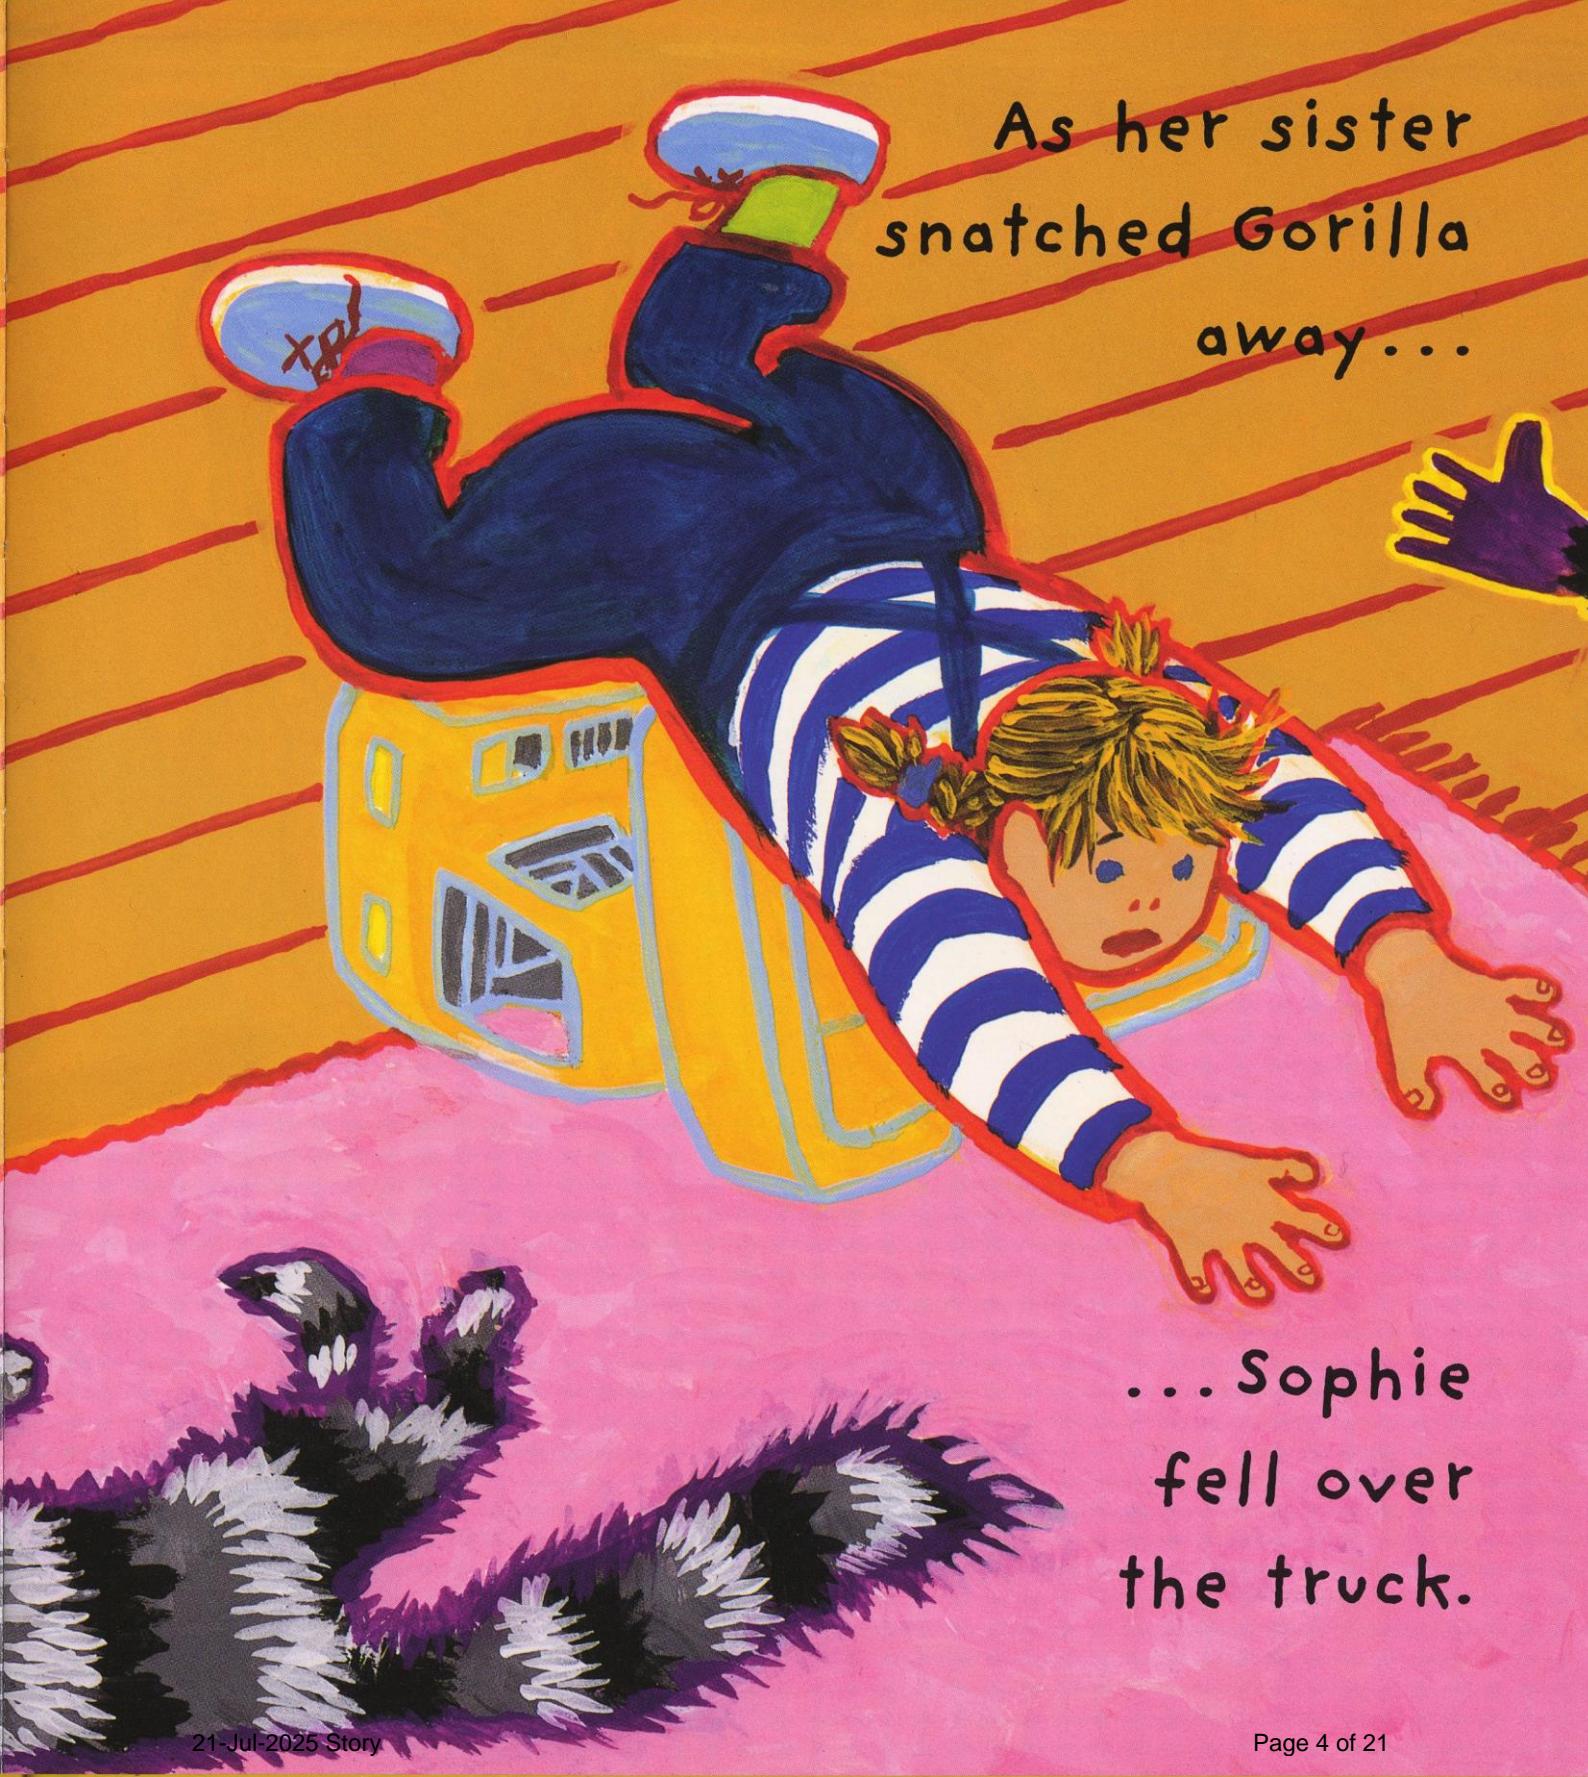

“No!” said Sophie.

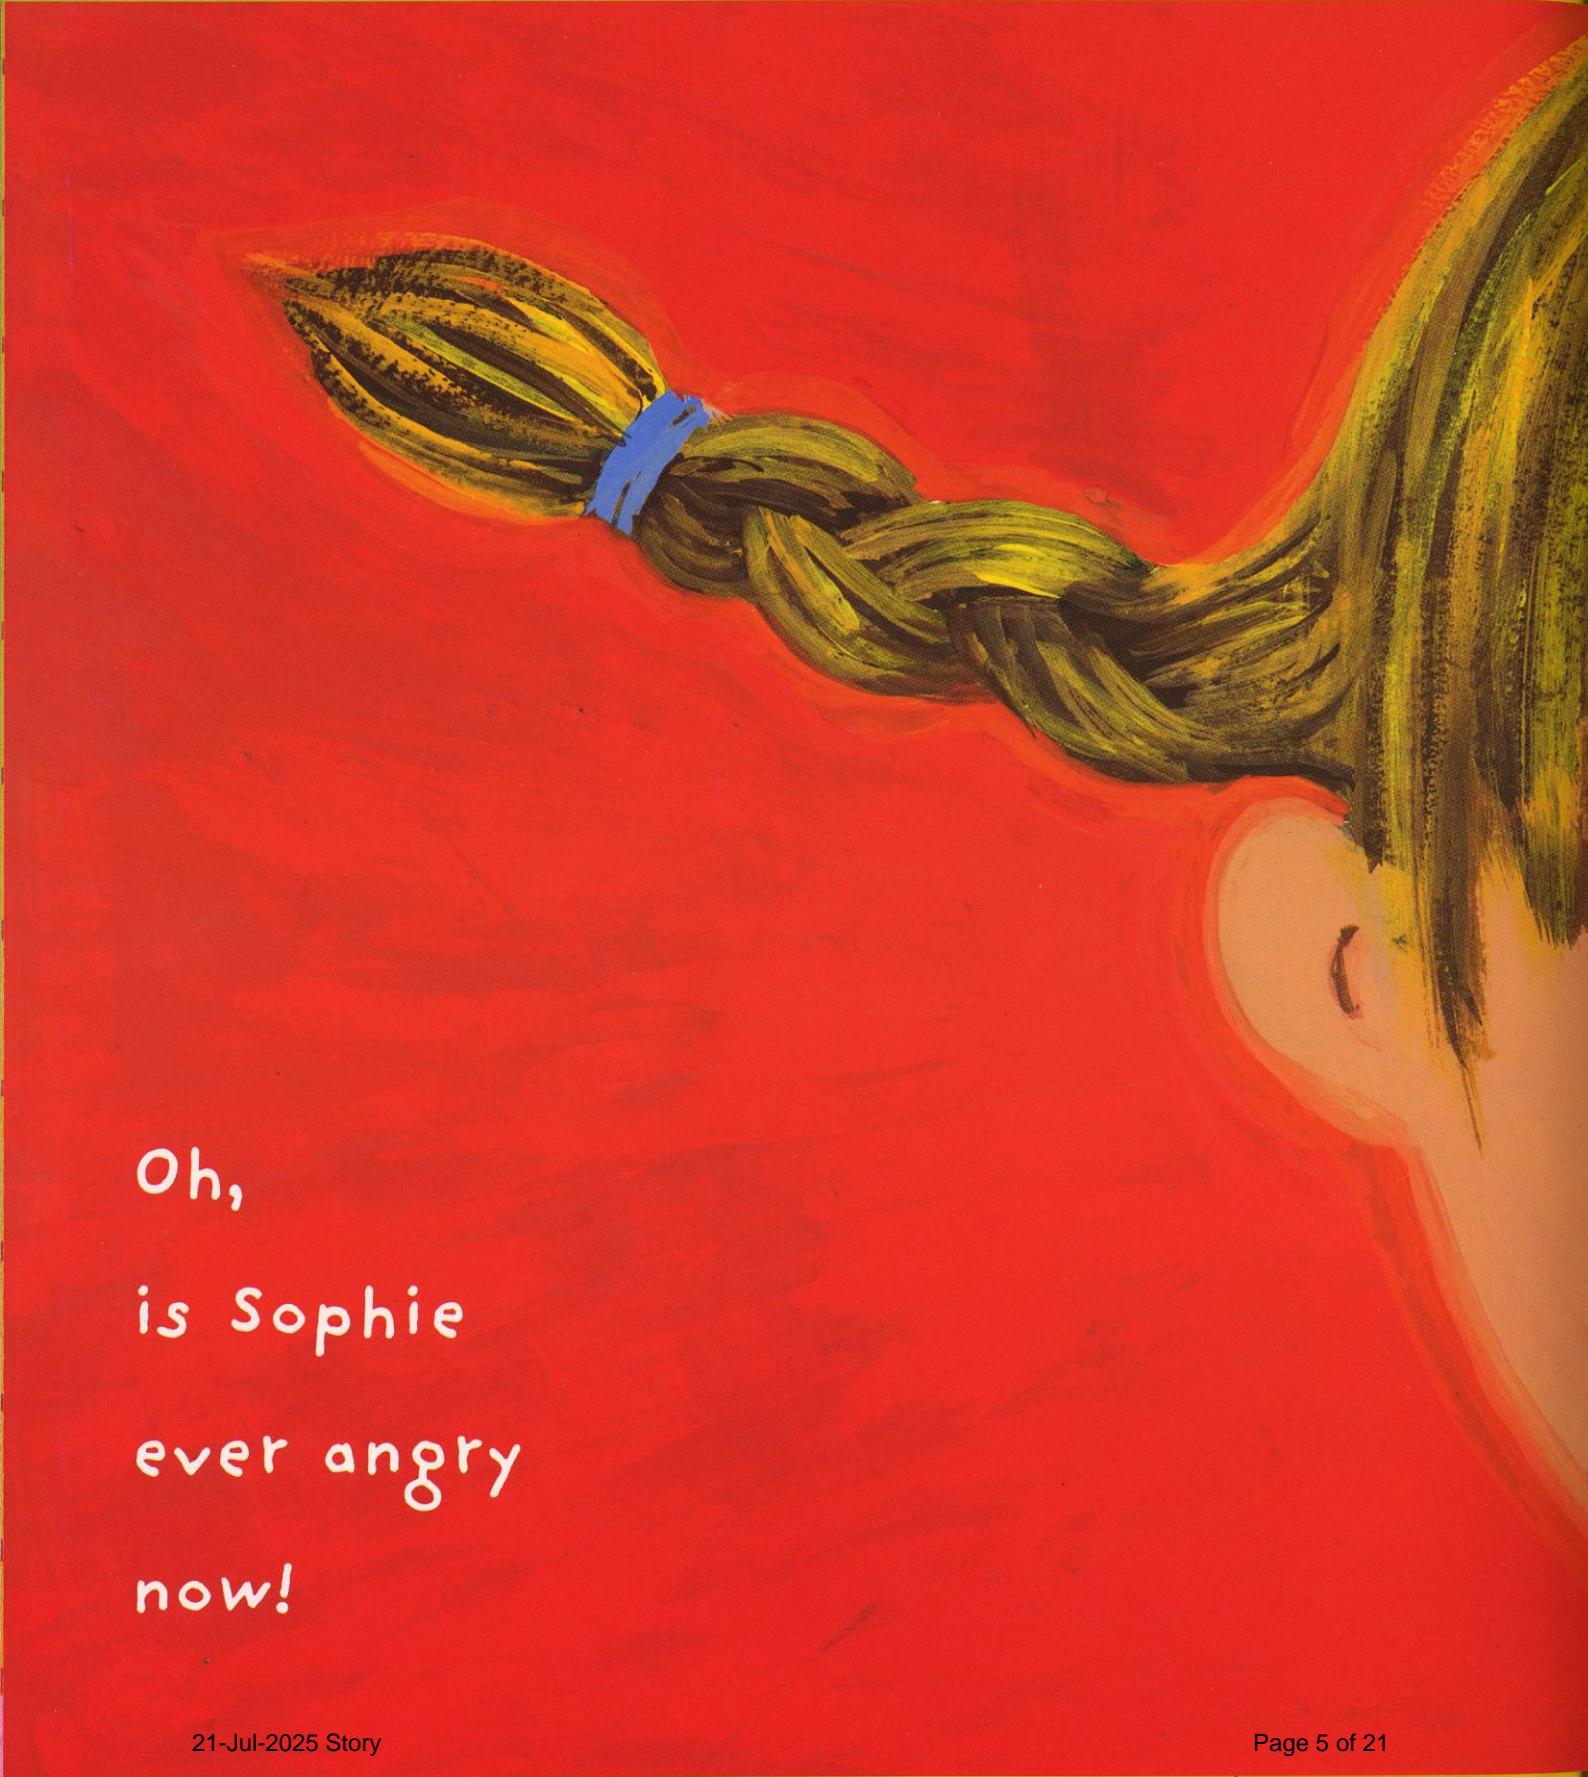

“Yes!” said her mother.

“It is her turn now,
Sophie.”

As her sister
snatched Gorilla
away...

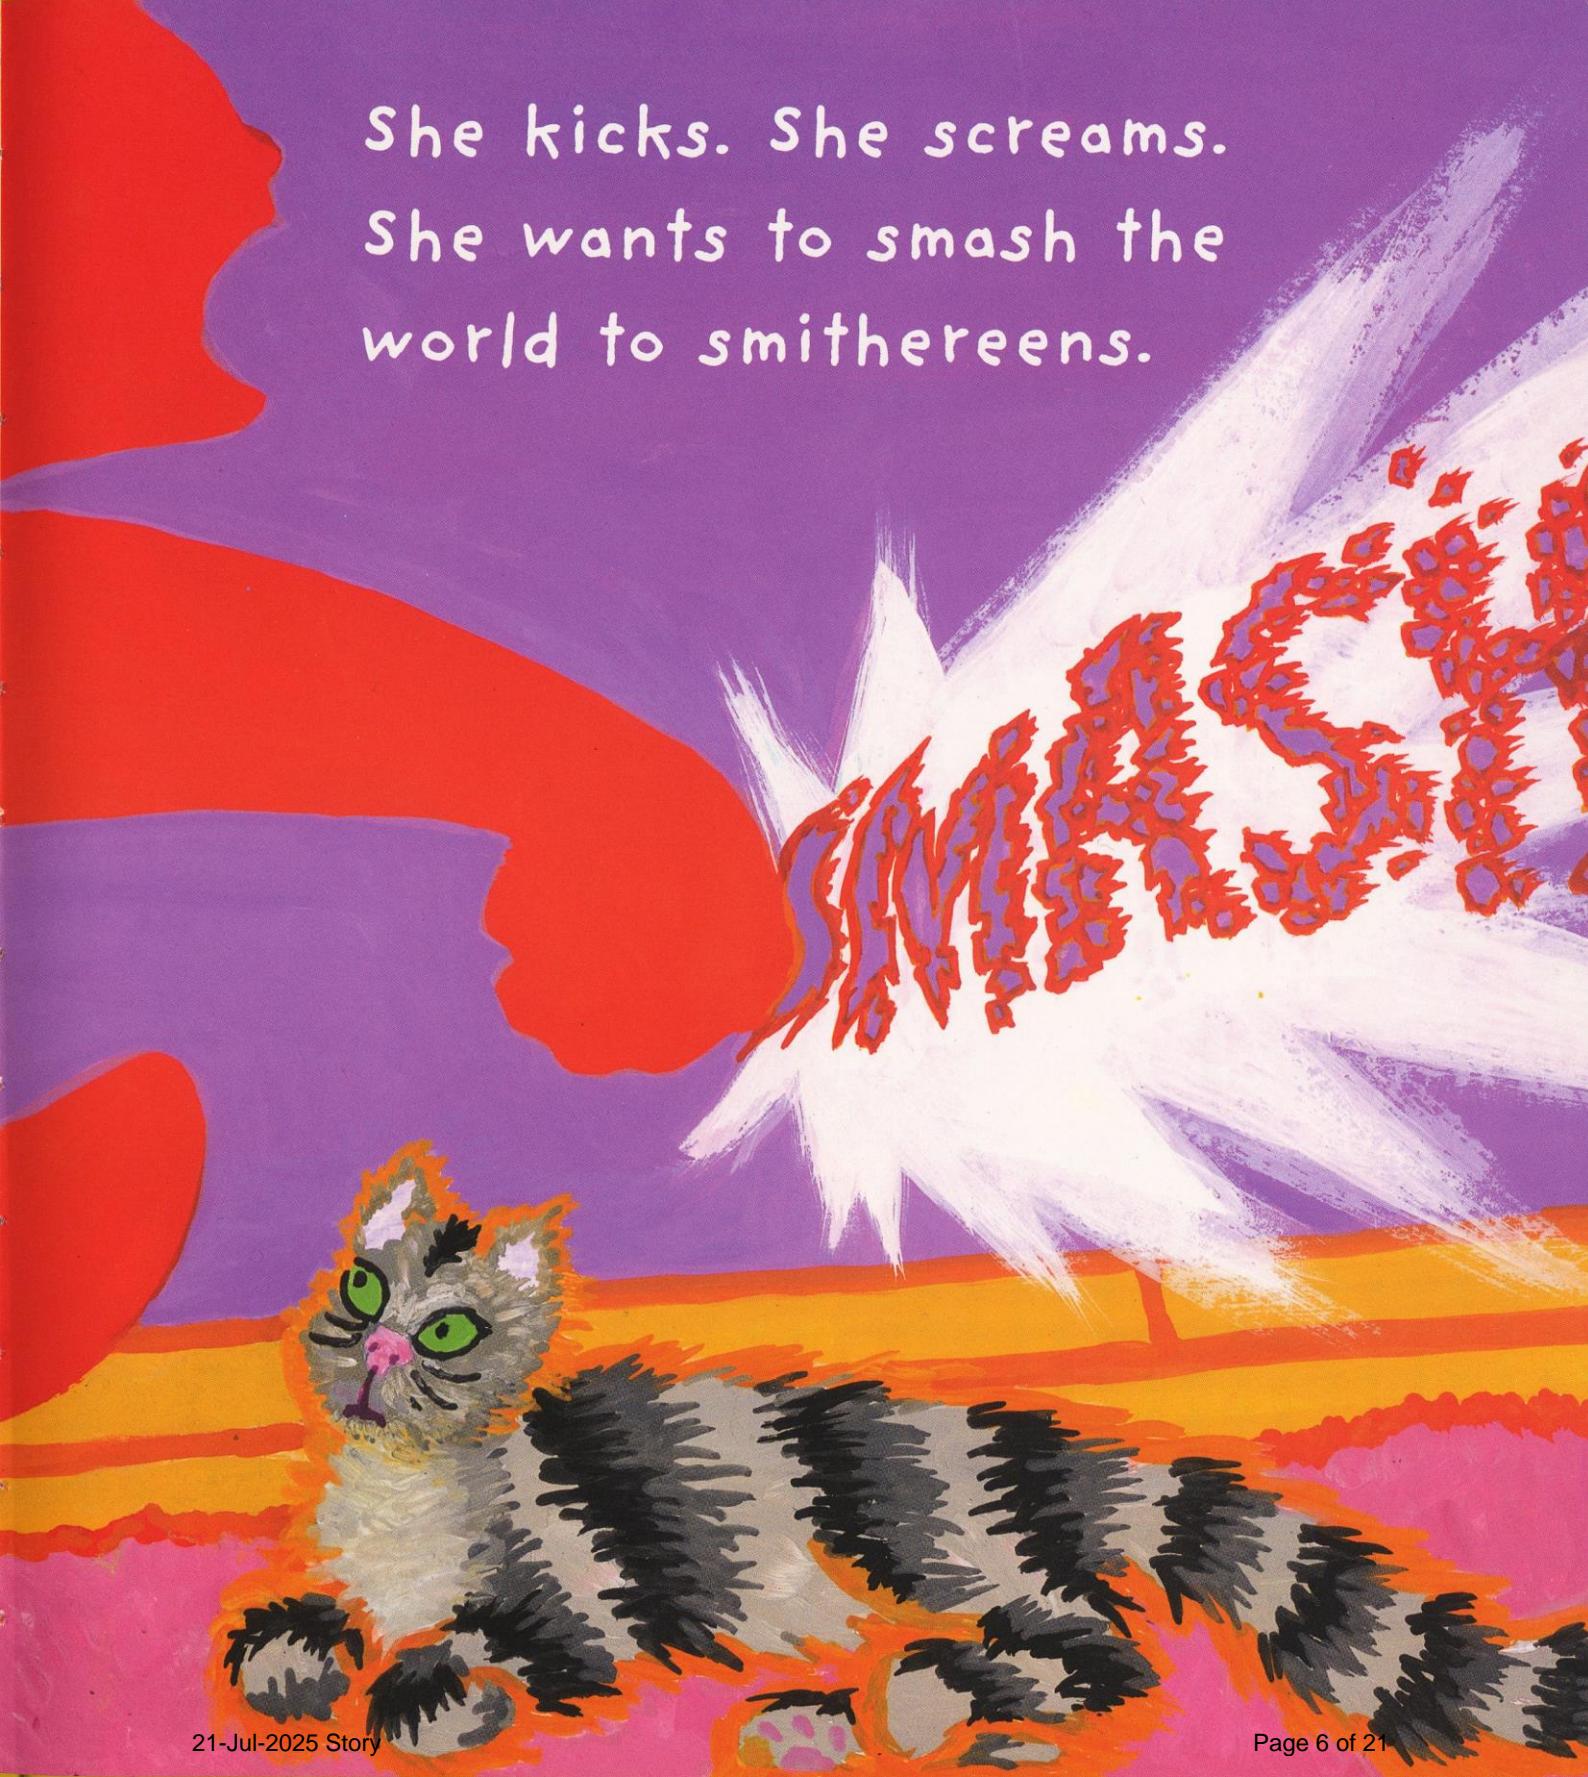

... Sophie
fell over the truck.

Oh,
is Sophie
ever angry
now!

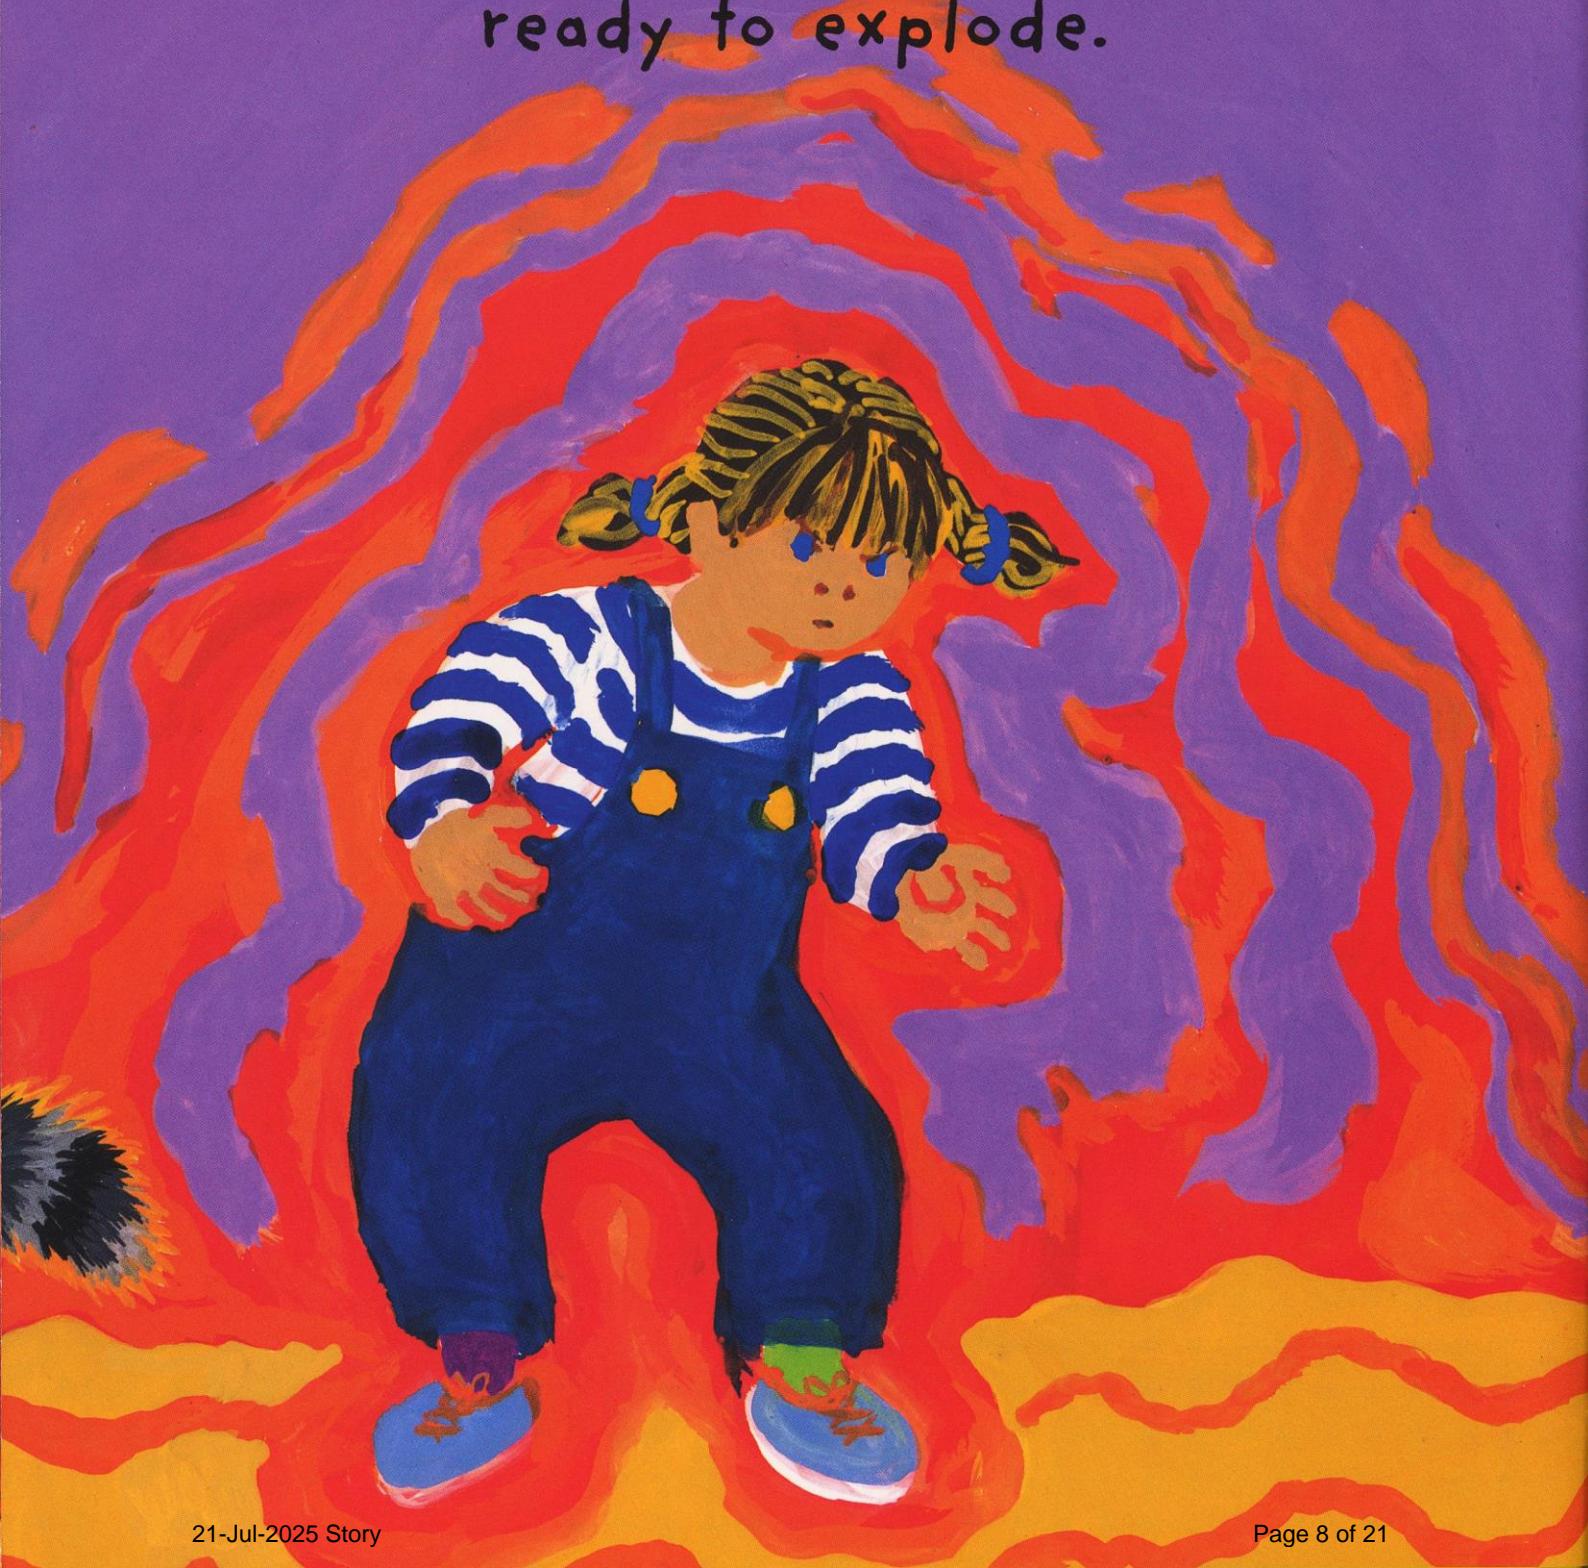

She kicks. She screams.
She wants to smash the world to smithereens.

She
roars
a red,
red roar.

Sophie is a volcano,
ready to explode.

And when Sophie
gets angry —
really, really angry...

She runs and runs
and runs until she can't run anymore.

Then,
for a little while,
she cries.

Now she sees the rocks,

the trees and ferns.

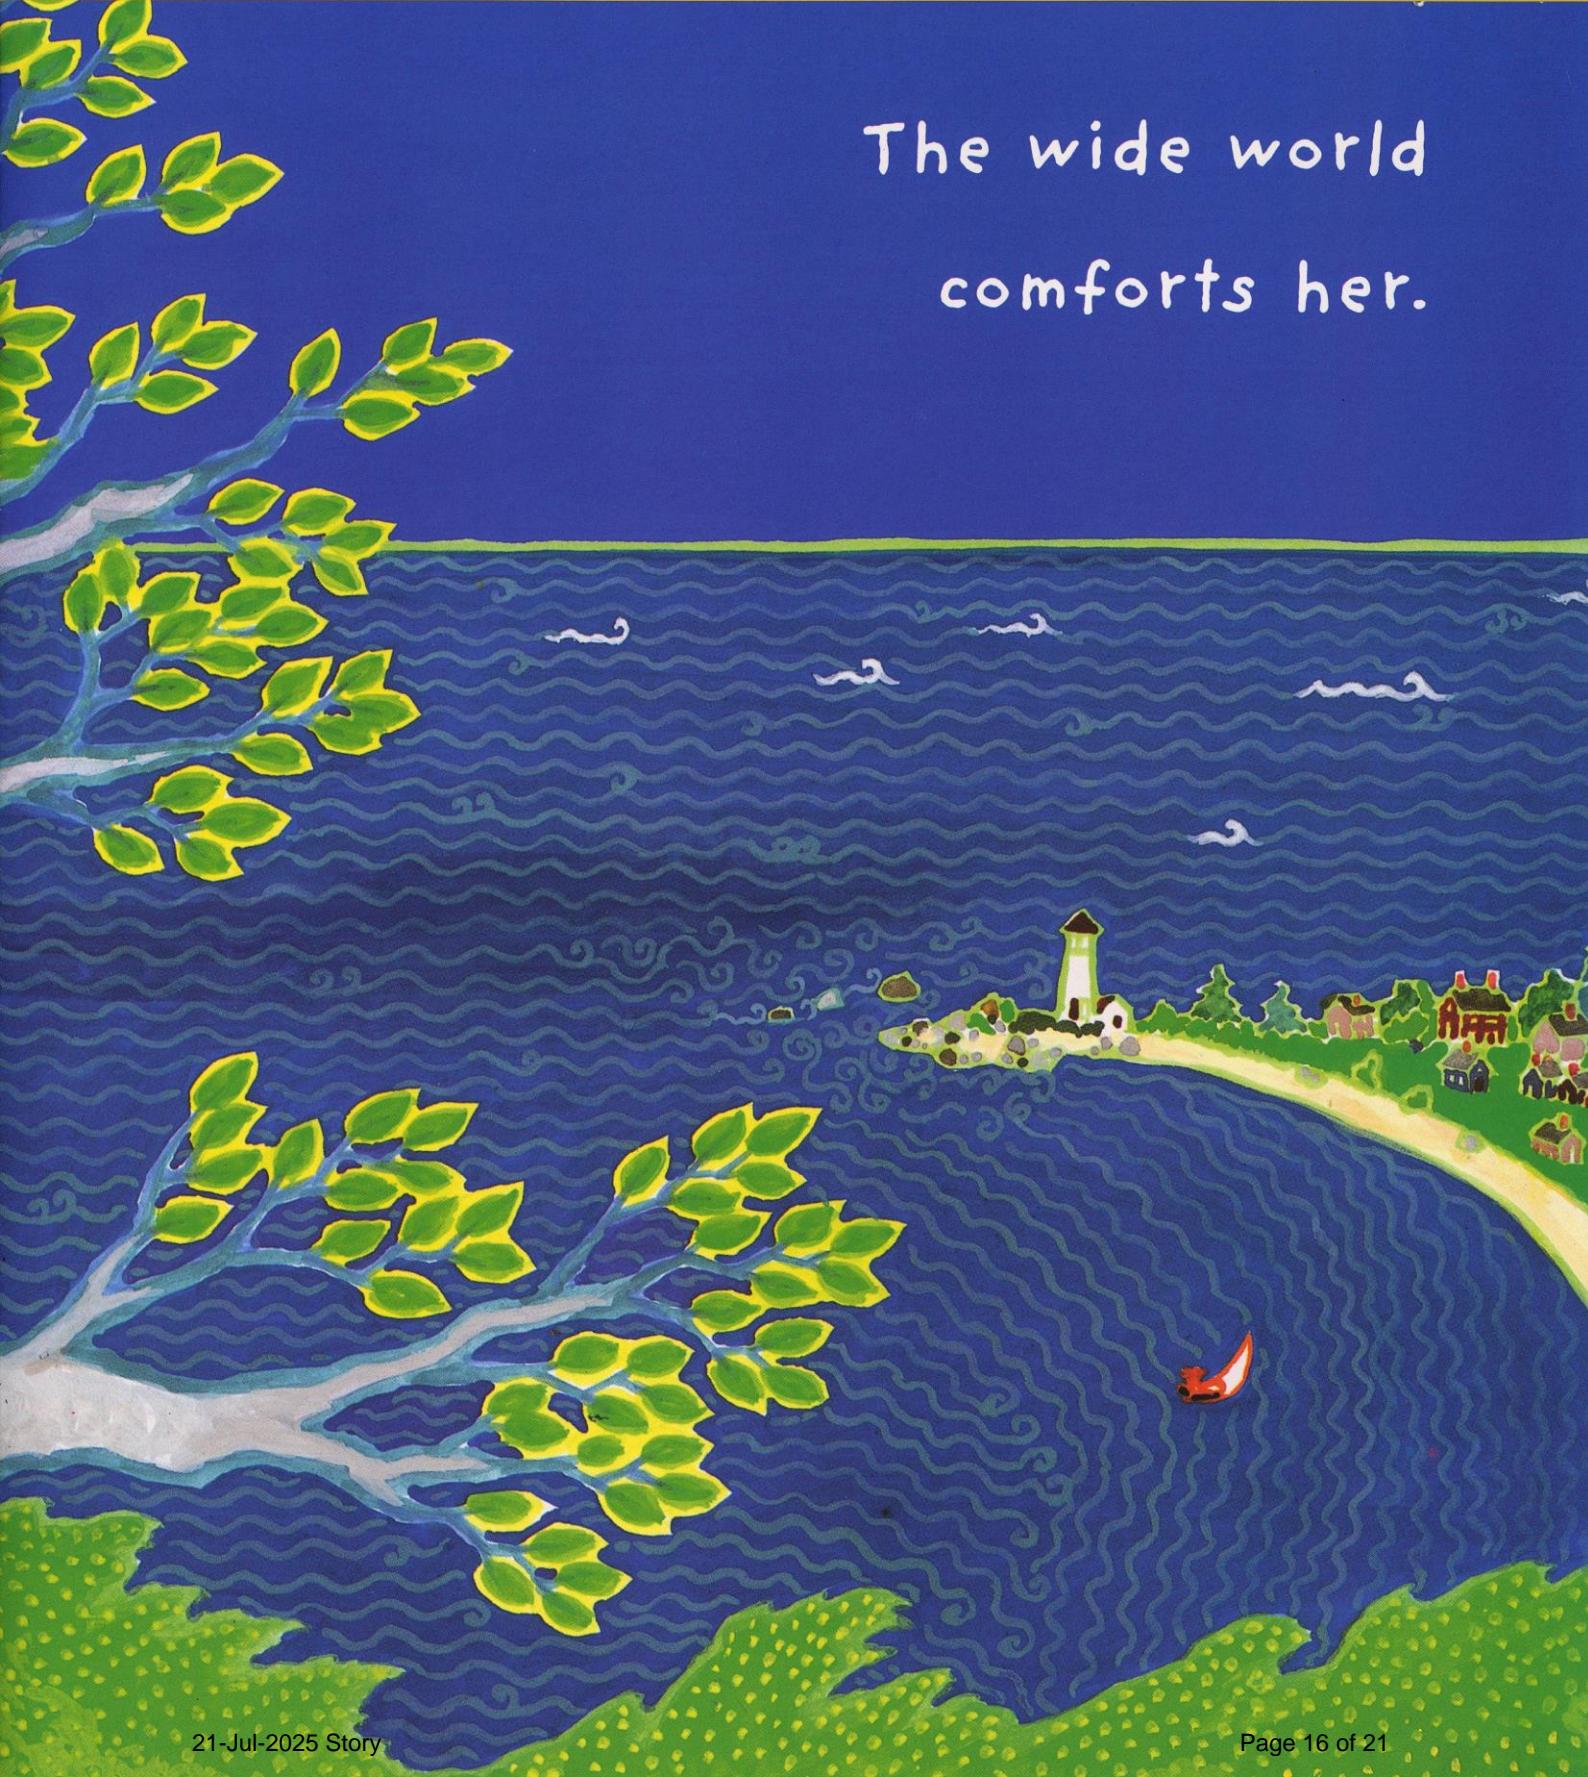

She hears a bird.

She comes to the old beech tree.
She climbs.

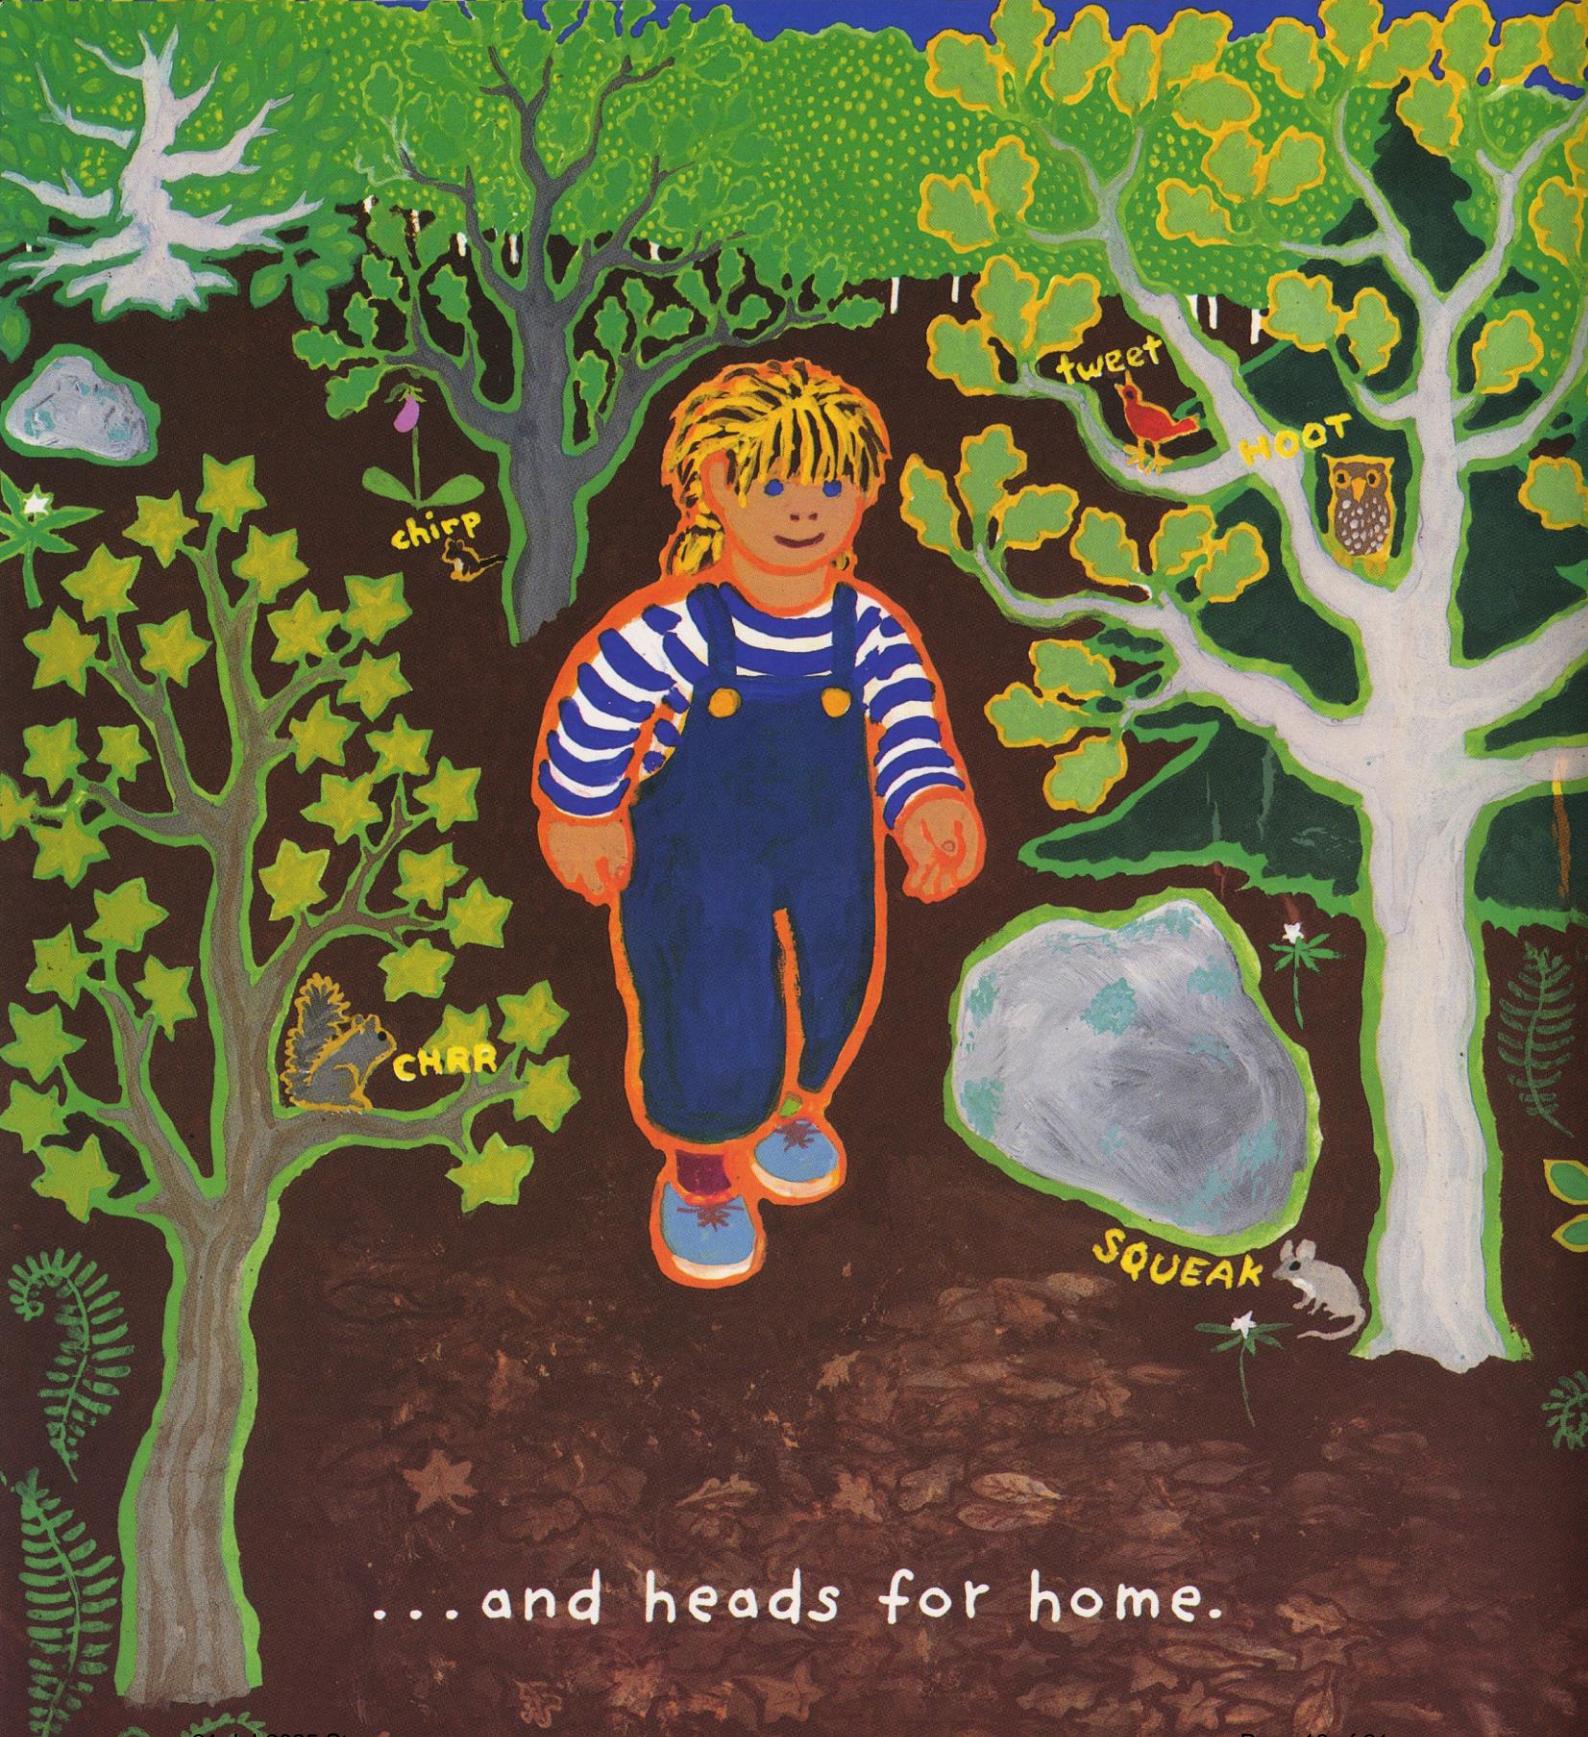

She feels the breeze
blow her hair.
She watches the water
and the waves.

The wide world
comforts her.

Sophie feels better now. She climbs back down....

...and heads for home.

The house is warm and smells good.
Everyone is glad she's home.

A vibrant, stylized illustration depicting a scene in a kitchen. In the center, a woman with short, curly blonde hair, wearing a green dress, stands facing right. To her right, another person with curly brown hair, wearing a blue patterned top, is bent over, focused on a large circular puzzle piece on the floor. The floor is dark brown with a yellow border. On the left side of the image, a fluffy, multi-colored cat (grey, black, white) is looking towards the center. The background features a pink wall with yellow trim and two windows showing green trees and flowers outside. The overall style is bold and graphic with thick outlines.

EVERYTHING GOES BACK TOGETHER AGAIN

And Sophie
isn't angry
anymore.

The End

PURR